

Draft Equally Safe Delivery Plan 2024 - 2026

Summary and Recommendations

This paper informs Members on the content and COSLA approval status of the Equally Safe Delivery Plan 2024 – 26, following Leaders scrutiny of the final draft on 29th May.

This paper invites Members to:

- i. Note the COSLA action under the Primary Prevention Deliverable;
- ii. Note the approval status of the Draft Equally Safe Delivery Plan (2024 – 2026);
and
- iii. note the ambition, with Scottish Government, of a June publication date and launch.

Draft Equally Safe Delivery Plan 2024 - 2026

Purpose

1. This paper informs Members on the content and COSLA approval status of the Equally Safe Delivery Plan 2024 – 26, following Leaders scrutiny of the final draft on 29th May.

Current COSLA Position

2. The Equally Safe Refreshed Strategy was developed and launched in December 2024. It reflects COSLA's ongoing joint political leadership with the Scottish Government to prevent and eradicate violence against women and girls. The Strategy outlines the aim to achieve this through a comprehensive, public health approach, emphasising increasing collaboration across sectors. The main focus is to address and change the attitudes and values that lead to violence against women and girls.

What is changing?

3. The Final Draft refreshed Equally Safe Draft Delivery Plan to have been considered by Leaders for their approval on the 31st May, as appended, was developed through consultation with a broad range of stakeholders. These included representation from across Local Government. There is an ambition for a June publication date and launch. It is planned that the joint Scottish Government/COSLA launch event will incorporate a spotlight on the new deliverables driving progress towards the realisation of the aims of Equally Safe over the next two years. It is also to highlight progress that has been made to date across Scotland in local areas against previous deliverables.
4. The Final Draft Plan contains 14 high level deliverables and related actions that sit beneath them. This includes a proposed COSLA action under the Primary Prevention Deliverable, as proposed by the Community Wellbeing Board in February 2023.
5. The high level action, also considered by Leaders, demonstrates COSLA's leadership and championing of the primary prevention of all forms of violence against women and girls:
  - COSLA will "implement a two-year programme aimed at supporting the development and integration of COSLA initiatives focused on enhancing women's access to power and resources. This will prioritise advancing gender equality and mitigating associated harms by addressing gender inequality through COSLA's policy scrutiny, development, and decision-making processes."
6. Oversight of this Equally Safe Deliverable workstream will be assured through progress reports on integrated, cross organisational planning, engagement, activity, and impact across COSLA's Boards, relevant Special Interest Groups (SIGs), Teams, functions, and activities, being received by the Community Wellbeing Board. It is recognised that content of any programme would require to be subject to available resources and capacity and would seek to add value to existing activity.

Proposed COSLA Position

7. The COSLA deliverable considered for approval by Leaders will be embedded into the Equally Safe Delivery Plan 2024 – 2026

8. The Draft Equally Safe Delivery Plan, attached as an Annex, pending sign off by the Minister for Victims and Community Safety, will be jointly published by COSLA and the Scottish Government in June 2024.

Next Steps

7. Members note
- i. the COSLA action under the Primary Prevention Deliverable
  - ii. the approval status of the Draft Equally Safe Delivery Plan (2024 – 2026); and
  - iii. the ambition, with Scottish Government, of a June publication date and launch.

Date Considered: June 2024

1. We will work with the Addressing Violence Against Minority Ethnic Women and Girls Network to ensure our work reflects the needs of minority ethnic women.

- Priority 6 - Deliver sustainable, informed and safe specialist and universal service responses for victim/survivors' that are holistic, and meet victim/survivors' individual needs
- Priority 7 - Promote an intersectional approach to preventing, reorganising and responding to the compounding inequalities and risks that some women, children and young people may experience as a result of their ethnicity, race, disability, age, sexual orientation, gender identity and/or immigration status

During the development of our delivery plan, we heard about challenges arising from the absence of a clear definition of honour-based abuse (HBA). Some understandings distinguish HBA from domestic abuse on the basis of the perpetrator (which in the case of HBA can include members of the family and community) and the motive (punishment for bringing shame to a family or community). Some approaches conflate the two. This can lead to a lack of consistent risk assessment and effective intervention to support victim-survivors.

Evidence also demonstrates that some minority ethnic women (particularly South Asian women) living in extended family households can experience abuse perpetrated by both their partner and/or other family members in the household, typically the husband's family. We heard that extended family abuse does not fit neatly within mainstream understanding of domestic abuse, which focuses on abuse from partners and ex-partners. Understanding the relationship between HBA, extended family abuse and domestic abuse and how it manifests within different ethnic groups and household arrangements can help inform more effective policy making and service delivery.

We also heard from stakeholders about the complex barriers that migrant women experiencing VAWG face, such as the weaponisation of immigration status by perpetrators, or the lack of accessible information explaining their legal entitlements and rights. We will work with the network to mitigate these challenges, within devolved competence, whilst we continue to raise concerns around reserved asylum, immigration and No Recourse to Public Funds policy with the UK Government.

The Addressing Violence Against Minority Ethnic Women and Girls Network brings together a range of partners from the third, statutory and academic sectors to consider and inform the Scottish Government's approach to violence against minority ethnic women and girls. Drawing on the valuable lived experience and expertise of the network, we will expand our understanding of these forms of VAWG in order to tackle the unique challenges around them.

2. We will deliver the Scottish Government Gender-Based Violence and Learning Disabilities Steering Group Action Plan.

- Priority 6 - Deliver sustainable, informed and safe specialist and universal service responses for victim/survivors' that are holistic, and meet victim/survivors' individual needs
- Priority 7 - Promote an intersectional approach to preventing, reorganising and responding to the compounding inequalities and risks that some women, children and young people may experience as a result of their ethnicity, race, disability, age, sexual orientation, gender identity and/or immigration status

Research and engagement demonstrates that women and girls with learning disabilities have a higher risk of experiencing VAWG than other disabled and non-disabled women and girls. During the engagement process, we heard from practitioners and women with learning disabilities about the importance of preventing VAWG before it happens, and the importance of ensuring that education settings have the necessary tools and resources to strengthen pupil understanding of healthy relationships and VAWG.

We also heard from stakeholders about the pervasive barriers that women and girls with learning disabilities who have experienced VAWG face when seeking support. They emphasised the need for accessible support services and routes to justice, which will be progressed by the development of an accessibility audit tool for VAWG services from March 2025.

The Scottish Government Gender-Based Violence and Learning Disabilities Steering Group is co-chaired by People First (Scotland) and the Scottish Commission for People with Learning Disabilities and aims to protect women and girls with learning disabilities from VAWG. Recognising the importance of listening to those with lived experience, we will continue to engage with women and girls with learning disabilities to ensure that their needs are recognised, included and acted upon throughout Equally Safe delivery, and within wider policy and practice.

	Actions	Leads	Timescales
2.1	We will ensure all education settings, mainstream and Special Educational Needs, are equipped to strengthen pupil understanding of relationships and VAWG.	Scottish Government Education and Gender-Based Violence and Learning Disabilities Steering Group	Ongoing
2.2	We will improve access to justice services for women and girls with learning disabilities.	Police Scotland, COPFS and Gender-Based Violence and Learning Disabilities Steering Group	Ongoing

2.3	We will improve access to support services for women and girls with learning disabilities.	Gender-Based Violence and Learning Disabilities Steering Group	June 2024 onwards
2.4	We will continue to work with women and girls with learning disabilities to shape VAWG policy and practice.	Scottish Government VAWG Equality, Learning Disabilities and Education, Scottish Commission for People with Learning Disabilities and Public Health Scotland	June 2024 onwards

3. We will develop a primary prevention approach to end violence against women and girls.

- Priority 1 - Preventing VAWG before it occurs
- Priority 3 – Build a broad and shared understanding across our society and communities of what VAWG is, how it affects those who have experience it, its impact on society more generally, the scale of the problem, and what cause it – so that we can reduce the harm together.
- Priority 4 – Build political, institutional, sectoral, organisational, community and personal commitment, and contribution to preventing and tackling VAWG.

Equally Safe prioritises taking a public health approach to ending VAWG and challenges the notion that VAWG is inevitable or acceptable. This includes focusing on primary prevention. Whilst stakeholders have expressed appreciation for this approach, many have acknowledged that there is an implementation gap between policy and practice.

In order to provide clarity around the practical application of primary prevention, we will develop a primary prevention framework to VAWG to embed a gender competent approach within policy and planning across sectors. To further support this, we will establish a collaborative programme to support local and national partners to develop an understanding of a public health approach. This will enable organisations to identify and implement actions within their organisation to embed a public health approach, and encourage collaborative working across sectors.

Elsewhere, we will continue to focus on preventing VAWG through work to develop to gender equality by progressing the recommendation made by the National Advisory Council on Women and Girls to design a new ‘What Works?’ institute to develop evidence-based and inclusive approaches to changing public attitudes in Scotland to girls’ and women’s equality and rights.

3.1	We will develop a primary prevention framework to enable a gender competent approach to policy and planning.	Zero Tolerance, Engender, Scottish Women’s Budget Group, Rape Crisis Scotland, Scottish Government, COSLA, Public Health Scotland, Improvement Service, and Dundee Violence against Women Partnership	2024-2026
3.2	We will establish a collaborative programme to support local and national partners to adopt a public health approach to preventing and eradicating VAWG, and promote collaborative working to end VAWG.	Public Health Scotland and the Improvement Service in collaboration with: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Scottish Government</li> <li>• COSLA</li> <li>• Engender</li> <li>• Zero Tolerance</li> <li>• Scottish Women’s Budget Group</li> </ul>	Implementation forum to be established and meet 8 times between 2024-2026

3.4	We will implement a two-year programme aimed at supporting the development and integration of COSLA initiatives focused on enhancing women's access to power and resources. This will prioritise advancing gender equality and mitigating associated harms by addressing gender inequality through COSLA's policy scrutiny, development, and decision-making processes.	COSLA	2024-2026

4. We will develop a robust understanding of VAWG data collection, availability and disaggregation practices across different sectors.

- Priority 3 – Build a broad and shared understanding across our society and communities of what VAWG is, how it affects those who have experienced it, its impact on society more generally, the scale of the problem, and what cause it – so that we can reduce the harm together
- Priority 7 - Promote an intersectional approach to preventing, reorganising and responding to the compounding inequalities and risks that some women, children and young people may experience as a result of their ethnicity, race, disability, age, sexual orientation, gender identity and/or immigration status

VAWG is a cross-sector issue and consequently various relevant datasets sit in different systems and sectors. Throughout the engagement process, stakeholders from a range of areas highlighted the challenges around measuring the extent of VAWG in Scotland due to issues around data collection, availability and disaggregation practices. Furthermore, we know that there is a lack of meaningful data available to assess the prevalence and impact of VAWG for minority ethnic women and girls, and women and girls with learning disabilities.

In line with our public health approach, it is vital that we use data and evidence to inform policy and practice, monitor our progress and identify areas for future improvement. We will therefore examine existing local and national data to identify opportunities to share insights, and to identify potential gaps. Furthermore, we will develop a measurement framework that can be used to monitor our progress against the activities and outcomes in the Equally Safe Logic Model.

4.1	We will undertake a scoping exercise of the qualitative and quantitative data that exists locally and nationally to identify gaps and areas for future improvement.	Scottish Government Justice Analytical Services, Equality Analysis, Health and Social Care and Children and Families analysis, Public Health Scotland, Improvement Service, and Scottish Women’s Aid	6 months
4.2	We will develop an Equally Safe Measurement Framework.	Scottish Government Justice Analytical Services and Equality Analysis, Public Health Scotland and Improvement Service	18 months
4.3	We will consider how we connect and share data with other public protection areas, and use data and evidence to support conversations to prevent and reduce harm and to improve	Scottish Government Cross-Government Public Protection Team	June 2024 onwards

5. We will develop a public engagement approach to raise awareness of the scale and impact of VAWG.

- Priority 1 - Preventing VAWG before it occurs
- Priority 3 – Build a broad and shared understanding across our society and communities of what VAWG is, how it affects those who have experience it, its impact on society more generally, the scale of the problem, and what cause it – so that we can reduce the harm together.

Equally Safe emphasises that by challenging misogyny, harmful assumptions and stereotypes, we pave the way for effective dismantling of the gender-based structures and attitudes which enable and support violence against women and girls.

We have been told of the need for communications and campaigns to raise awareness of VAWG and support attitudinal and culture change. In particular, stakeholders highlighted the importance of engaging with men and boys to bring about change. We were told that in order to truly end violence and discrimination against women and girls, men and boys must be seen as more than part of the problem; they have to be seen as integral to the solution.

Many noted the success of campaigns around reducing misogyny aimed at men and boys within Scotland, such as Police Scotland’s ‘That Guy’ media campaign. Welsh Gov campaign. The work undertaken by third sector specialist organisations will inform our approach.

	Actions	Leads	Timescales
5.1	We will develop a public facing engagement campaign to work with men and boys to challenge misogyny.	Scottish Government VAWG Equality, VAWG Justice and Marketing in consultation with: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Specialist VAWG organisations</li> </ul>	2024-2026
5.2	We will host a Media Summit to challenge the nature of existing media coverage of VAWG.	Scottish Government VAWG Equality and Justice and COSLA in collaboration with: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Specialist VAWG organisations</li> <li>• Media partners</li> </ul>	12 months
5.3	We will launch a targeted sextortion awareness campaign aimed at young people and the adults that work with and look after them.	Fearless (part of Crimestoppers), Police Scotland, and Scottish Government VAWG Equality & Justice in consultation with specialist VAWG organisations	November 2024

6. We will build a robust and joined up approach to the prevention of VAWG across all education settings.

- Priority 2 – Support early intervention.
- Priority 7 - Promote an intersectional approach to preventing, reorganising and responding to the compounding inequalities and risks that some women, children and young people may experience as a result of their ethnicity, race, disability, age, sexual orientation, gender identity and/or immigration status

That education settings are key to supporting early intervention and prevention of violence against women and girls was a message we heard frequently. Furthermore, evidence shows that schools are reporting rising numbers of incidents involving misogyny and abuse on social media platforms, and citing the harm of pornography.

We heard that there are a number of valuable education initiatives available addressing gender-based violence in education settings. These include the Rape Crisis Scotland’s sexual violence Prevention Programme, the Rape Crisis Scotland Equally Safe at School intervention , Mentors in Violence Prevention (MVP) programme and Equally Safe in Colleges and Universities. We also heard that implementation can be patchy and there are concerns about the capacity to deliver programmes in a cluttered landscape.

The Gender-Based Violence in Schools Framework was flagged as a real lever to ensure wide-spread and consistent approaches to tackle gender-based violence in schools.

	Actions	Leads	Timescales
6.1	We will ensure that all secondary schools are registered with Equally Safe at School.	Association of Directors of Education in Scotland	2024-2026
6.2	We will ensure that all key secondary school staff undertake the Equally Safe at School e-learning module.	Association of Directors of Education in Scotland	2024-2026
6.3	We will ensure that all schools record incidences of gender-based violence and that Local Authorities review this data.	Association of Directors of Education in Scotland	2024-2026
6.4	We will ensure that all school staff complete trauma awareness training.	Association of Directors of Education in Scotland	2024-2026

6.5	We will ensure that all Local Authorities review their Relationships Sexual Health and Parenthood (RSHP) curriculum to ensure that it includes learning about equalities and gender-based violence.	Association of Directors of Education in Scotland	2024-2026
6.6	We will ensure that learning about online safety in all Local Authorities includes reference to technology facilitated VAWG.	Association of Directors of Education in Scotland	2024-2026
6.7	We will ensure that all Local Authorities encourage the development of peer learning and activity around gender based violence in secondary schools, dependant on the availability of training.	Association of Directors of Education in Scotland	2024-2026
6.8	We will review the delivery of, and the relationship between, existing education programmes.	Scottish Government Education & Lifelong Learning, Education Scotland, Equally Safe in Colleges and Universities Core Leadership Group and Rape Crisis Scotland	2024-2026
6.9	We will identify specific barriers preventing girls feeling safe in public 'play spaces' and develop guidance for public bodies to address them.	Scottish Government Children and Families	2026

7. We will develop a flexible and stable funding model which reflects the ambitions of Equally Safe.

- Priority 1 - Preventing VAWG before it occurs
- Priority 6 - deliver sustainable, informed and safe specialist and universal service responses for victim/survivors that are holistic and meet victim/survivors' individual needs
- Priority 7 - Promote an intersectional approach to preventing, reorganising and responding to the compounding inequalities and risks that some women, children and young people may experience as a result of their ethnicity, race, disability, age, sexual orientation, gender identity and/or

Now, more than ever, it is vital that we make the best use of our collective resources. During engagement with stakeholders including our Delivering Equally Safe (DES) funded organisations, we heard about the need for a sustainable long-term funding model with a focus on prevention and high-quality specialist services that provide critical support to victim and survivors.

Informed by the Independent Review of Funding and Commissioning of VAWG Services, we will develop a new sustainable funding model to succeed the current arrangements under the DES Fund. This will provide stability for specialist services while supporting universal mainstream transformation.

As part of this process, we will work with the VAWG Sustainable Funding Project Board to produce an accurate assessment of the current cost and spend of violence against women and children and young people, to the public purse nationally and locally, to inform the development of a future funding model.

	Actions	Leads	Timescales
7.1	We will assess the current cost and spend of VAWG to inform the development of a sustainable long term funding model.	Scottish Government VAWG Equality, COSLA and VAWG Sustainable Funding Project Board	Ongoing
7.2	We will work with the VAWG Sustainable Funding Project Board to develop a new sustainable funding model.	Scottish Government VAWG Equality, COSLA and VAWG Sustainable Funding Project Board	Ongoing

8. We will develop a streamlined approach to trauma-informed workplace practices that promote and enhance VAWG knowledge, skills and expertise.

- Priority 5 - Hold perpetrators of VAWG to account, supporting change where possible
- Priority 6 - Deliver sustainable, informed and safe specialist and universal service responses for victim/survivors' that are holistic, and meet victim/survivors' individual needs
- Priority 7 - Promote an intersectional approach to preventing, reorganising and responding to the compounding inequalities and risks that some women, children and young people may experience as a result of their ethnicity, race, disability, age, sexual orientation, gender identity and/or immigration status.

Stakeholders across various sectors highlighted organisations' limited capacity and resources to develop and deliver VAWG training. Consequently, they cited a lack of consistency around VAWG knowledge across different teams and organisations. Developing a joined-up, streamlined approach to workforce development could ease pressures on stakeholders and practitioners to identify and complete various training, resulting in better outcomes for the victim survivors they support.

We were also told about the importance of applying learning from the National Trauma Transformation Programme to develop a trauma informed and responsive workforce to support victims of VAWG.

We also heard about the positive impact that the Safe & Together model was having in Scotland, but noted some barriers to its implementation. It was proposed that different options for Safe & Together Model delivery and implementation in Scotland are explored.

	Actions	Leads	Timescales
8.1	We will develop and implement a national framework that will inform an approach to trauma-informed VAWG training and workforce development across the public and the third sectors.	National VAWG Training Working Group
8.2	We will support and promote initiatives that exemplify and promote workplace policies and practices that take a gendered analysis of VAWG and embed the principles of Equally Safe, particularly in the public and third sectors.	Scottish Government VAWG Equality, Fair Work and Close the Gap

8.3	We will raise awareness of how a trauma-informed approach can support a reduction in health inequalities for women, children and young people.	Scottish Government Mental Health and Improvement Service
8.4	We will explore and implement options for a Safe &amp; Together Model for Scotland.	Scottish Government, Safe & Together Institute, Social Work Scotland, Improvement Service and COSLA	2024-2026

9. We will improve our response to the many forms of technology facilitated VAWG and its harms.

- Priority 2 – Support early intervention.
- Priority 3 – Build a broad and shared understanding across our society and communities of what VAWG is, how it affects those who have experience it, its impact on society more generally, the scale of the problem, and what cause it – so that we can reduce the harm together
- Priority 6 - Deliver sustainable, informed and safe specialist and universal service responses for victim/survivors’ that are holistic, and meet victim/survivors’ individual needs.

We heard many concerns around the prevalence of technology facilitated VAWG, and the need to better support women and girls affected by it. We were told that technology facilitated VAWG can take many forms such as trolling, threats, abuse (including child sexual abuse and grooming), unwanted sexual remarks, non-consensual sharing of intimate photos, cyberflashing and messages. Furthermore, the online commercial sexual exploitation industry is growing and normalising demand for sexualised imagery.

The technology to directly abuse, track, monitor covertly, or propagate abusive content, including with advances in Artificial Intelligence (AI) and AI generated images and videos (often known as ‘deep fakes’), is now widely accessible and available, often with anonymity. VAWG is therefore experienced offline and online, and the two merge. What starts online often moves offline, and vice versa. Furthermore, rapid advances in technology mean the nature of the threat is constantly evolving.

The importance of digital inclusion training for organisations that support victims is key to improving our response to technology facilitated VAWG. Recognising the need to hold social media companies accountable for the harmful conditions that cause VAWG, and recognising that the regulation of internet online service providers is reserved to the UK Government, we will continue to engage with the UK Government and Ofcom on the commencement of the UK Online Safety Act.

10. We will support the health sector to identify and respond to victims and survivors of VAWG.

- Priority 4 – Build political, institutional, sectoral, organisational, community and personal commitment, and contribution to preventing and tackling VAWG.
- Priority 6 - Deliver sustainable, informed and safe specialist and universal service responses for victim/survivors' that are holistic, and meet victim/survivors' individual needs.

Equally Safe recognises the critical role that health and social care professionals play in the early identification of those at risk of VAWG, and in providing care that is trauma-informed and person-centred.

During the engagement process we heard from stakeholders about the need to build stronger links between Equally Safe and the NHS. The need for VAWG leadership, planning and accountability across the health sector was emphasised, along with the need to build gender and cultural competence into health policy and healthcare services.

We also heard about the wider challenges that the health and social care system is currently facing, which can lead to inconsistency in the service responses across health boards and Health and Social Care Partnerships, as well as wider capacity and capability issues affecting our response to victim survivors of VAWG. As such, the need to support the professional development of the health workforce was also made clear.

11. We will strengthen links between VAWG and other areas of Public Protection to both prioritise actions to prevent and reduce harm and to improve outcomes for adult and child victim-survivors of VAWG

- Priority 3 – Build a broad and shared understanding across our society and communities of what VAWG is, how it affects those who have experience it, its impact on society more generally, the scale of the problem, and what cause it – so that we can reduce the harm together.
- Priority 4 – Build political, institutional, sectoral, organisational, community and personal commitment, and contribution to preventing and tackling VAWG.
- Priority 6 - Deliver sustainable, informed and safe specialist and universal service responses for victim/survivors’ that are holistic, and meet victim/survivors’ individual needs.

Addressing VAWG is an essential element of public protection and adult and child victim survivors of VAWG may come into contact with multiple parts of the public protection system. Despite this, we heard that there is a lack of cohesion within the system, with some areas working in silos, unaware of their shared priorities across it. This highlighted need to strengthen links within the system.

We also heard about the need to provide child victims and witnesses of abuse with holistic trauma-informed support at the earliest opportunity. We will continue to work with statutory and third sector partners to ensure progression of the phased implementation of Bairns’ Hoose to improve outcomes for child victims and witnesses and contribute to their journey of recovery by providing trauma-informed support as soon as it is needed.

	Actions	Leads	Timescales
11.1	We will develop refreshed guidance for multi-agency Violence Against Women Partnerships, clarifying where they sit within wider community planning structures.	National Violence Against Women (VAW) Network, Improvement Service, Scottish Government, COSLA and PHS	Refreshed guidance to be developed by May 2025, with VAWPs supported to use it thereafter

12. We will ensure that the considerations of the Justice Board and the delivery of the Vision for Justice reflect the key themes of Equally Safe and the Report from the Women in Justice Leadership Panel.

- Priority 1 - Preventing VAWG before it occurs.
- Priority 4 – Build political, institutional, sectoral, organisational, community and personal commitment, and contribution to preventing and tackling VAWG.
- Priority 5 - Hold perpetrators of VAWG to account, supporting change where possible.
- Priority 6 - Deliver sustainable, informed and safe specialist and universal service responses for victim/survivors’ that are holistic, and meet victim/survivors’ individual needs.

Both the Vision for Justice and Equally Safe have a vision for a Scotland where all individuals are equally safe and respected, and where women and girls live free from all forms of violence and the attitudes that perpetuate it. Similarly, evidence and conclusions from the Women’s Justice Leadership Panel support a collective understanding and application of a gender competent approach.

Recognising those involved in prostitution as victims of exploitation, we heard calls to better support the needs of women involved in commercial sexual exploitation (CSE), and to tackle the stigma surrounding it. The need to take a preventative approach to tackle the conditions that foster CSE through education and awareness raising activities was also highlighted.

We also heard concerns from stakeholders around the disconnect between domestic abuse criminal proceedings and civil law, such as child contact proceedings. For example, there is no systematic recording of domestic abuse in child contact proceedings. To address this, we are holding workshops with various delivery, voluntary and third sector bodies to discuss the key challenges and find potential solutions them. These workshops will inform a general discussion paper on improvements which will be considered by the Scottish Government and delivery partners.

Another key concern from stakeholders was around access to justice for women and girls who have experienced VAWG. In particular, the need for an effective and efficient legal aid system to ensure fairer access to justice was made clear. In line with our commitment in the Vision for Justice, the Scottish Government will continue to engage with key stakeholders to inform and shape future legislative proposals in relation to the reform of legal aid. This will include consideration of civil, criminal and children’s legal assistance.

13. We will develop an action plan to implement the Istanbul Convention recommendations.

- Priority 4 – Build political, institutional, sectoral, organisational, community and personal commitment, and contribution to preventing and tackling VAWG
- Priority 7 - Promote an intersectional approach to preventing, reorganising and responding to the compounding inequalities and risks that some women, children and young people may experience as a result of their ethnicity, race, disability, age, sexual orientation, gender identity and/or immigration status

In July 2022 the UK ratified the Istanbul Convention, the Council of Europe’s human rights treaty tackling violence against women and girls. We will reaffirm our commitment to realising human rights for all by reviewing and responding to GREVIO’s recommendations. Building on feedback gained during the engagement process, we will work together with our national and local partners to ensure we develop an effective whole-system response to support us on our journey to realise the human rights of women and children in Scotland.

14. We will establish a clear governance structure for Equally Safe delivery, streamlining processes where possible.

- Priority 4 – Build political, institutional, sectoral, organisational, community and personal commitment, and contribution to preventing and tackling VAWG
- Priority 7 - Promote an intersectional approach to preventing, reorganising and responding to the compounding inequalities and risks that some women, children and young people may experience as a result of their ethnicity, race, disability, age, sexual orientation, gender identity and/or immigration status

During the engagement process, we heard about the importance of collective leadership and collaboration across sectors to achieve the aims of Equally Safe. We also heard about the need for clear reporting systems in order to ensure accountability and progress with regards to Equally Safe delivery.

Building on our existing Equally Safe structures, we will strengthen and clarify governance arrangements to ensure that all of our delivery partners have a clear understanding of their role in relation to ending VAWG. These structures will strengthen our response to VAWG across Scotland and enable us to monitor and evaluate our progress, addressing any challenges as required.

Recognising the wealth of knowledge and lived experience in our networks, we will also formalise the roles of the Addressing Violence Against Minority Ethnic Women and Girls Network and the Gender-Based Violence and Learning Disabilities Steering Group in our governance structure. This will ensure that delivery of Equally Safe reflects the unique needs of minority ethnic women, and women and girls with learning disabilities.
